

Hold That Beginning!

It is not very common to tell someone to remain at the beginning of something, is it? If there is a beginning, then there must be an end, right? It seems safe to assume that, if a person makes a beginning of something, it is because he wants to see the end. But, can a person have both the beginning and the end at the same time? God can do that because He is eternal: the Beginning and the End. But can we?

For we have become partakers of Christ if we hold the beginning of our confidence steadfast to the end. Hebrews 3:14.

I can remember running the 440-yard race in school. The start line was the finish line. Technically, you could be at the beginning and at the end without moving. But what about the race? Can you imagine a stadium full of people watching twenty or so of the world's best athletes standing on the start/finish line not wanting to begin the race for fear of not being first over the finish line? The starter runs out of blanks for his starting pistol, but no one is willing to start!

It is tempting to stay on the start/finish line, isn't it? And, if we are in Christ, we are at the beginning and the end, so why bother racing?

We run against the evil one and against his schemes and wiles. We run for the salvation and hope of others. The world has to witness the race. They have to see what happens when a Christian falls down, how others who are racing come alongside and help him back on his feet. The world has to see how spiritual athletes help one another to the finish line.

And so God tells us to keep the confidence we had at the start line and that is how we will make it to the finish line. Remember how real Jesus is, and push on. Feel again the excitement and the hope, and run harder. Drink in His love and power again, and be refreshed.

It helps to know that the One who began us is the One who will finish us (Philippians 1:6), and that He runs with us always. When you run the LORD's race you are always on the finish line when you line up on His start line. So, keep the confidence you began with till the end...and run!
